WHICH LED TO FALL OF CITY. The operations which jed up to the supture of Gorisia by the Stalians are described to the following statement by the War Office

The allack began on Aug 4 to the Monfalenne section, against Hills 85 and 171, east of Bores. We stormed a very powerful enemy works there, taking 145 prisoners, but the advereary had placed in shandoned treachor quantities of hombs which expioded, giving off clouds of poissnous gases, just as our troops entered the captured lines. Heavy masses of the enemy then made counter-attacks and our troops, stupefied or asphysiated by the gas, were forced to fall back to their own trenches.

ARTILLERY ATTACKS THE EN TIRE AUSTRIAN FRONT.

On Aug. 5 the artillery sounded the enemy's whole from with the object of distracting his attention and fixing the ranges accurately. On the morning of Aug. 6 our batteries opened fire simultaneously on the rocky barrier which from Habotino to Cavario defends the Isonzo and Gorizia to the west, and against Monte San Michele, which forms the northern edge of the Gorizian Carso. The artillery action of the day, long and carefully worked out, represented a perfect example of concess trated fire against fortified lines.

Thanks to our aviators and to the observations of battery officers, the positions of the enemy had all been marked off clearly on target maps and ranges for the extension and leghthening of fire had been calculaed with the greatest nicety. Thus at the appointed time a veritable tempest of shells fell in a wholly unexpected manner on the positions of the enemy, demolishing everything systematically.

"Infantry columns then advanced with customary dash, well supported by a curtain of fire of our artillery. and carried the entire formidable forms the base of the Gorisia bridge- their heritage. head. On the heights which cover the city to the west they stormed the defenses of Oslavia and of the summit of Hill 206, which commands Graffenburg. On the plath they drove in a defensive line between the souther border of Podgora and the Isonso. They also attacked on the right bank of the river as far as Saint Andrea. VICTORY BEGAN BY THE CAP.

Italian artillery was able to silence guns on both these positions, with the aid of twenty-four dirigible balloons, each of which carries four tons of explosives. By day and night these halloons were operated in the most daring manner. They were attacked frequently by Austrian aeroplanes, which were driven off either by Italian aeroplanes or by the guns mounted on the dirigibles. The Italians also used their dirigible to harass the Austrians defending Gorisis, in which connection they did most effective work.

TANGLED ROMANCE

Society Pair, Whose Double Elopement Led to Suicide and Divorce, Are Married.

The tangled sketn of a romance that caused one person to commit suicide, resulted in two elopements by the principals, while both were still married. and which finally led the man in the case through the divorce court to the altar, was unravelled in Boston Monday, when Mrs. Elinow Hoyt Hickborn was married to Horace Wylle The news did not reach the public until to-day, coming as the climax of a series of sensational incidents that began in 1910 when Mrs. Highborn, the wife of Philip S. Hichborn, and one of the most prominent matrons in Washington society, elepad with Wylle, twenty years her senior, and fied to France. She left behind her little boy, about one year ad: Wylie deserted his wife and four hildren.

Wylle had known the woman who is now his wife before she was married to Philip S Hichborn, son of the late Philip 8. Hichborn, chief naval constructor of the United States Navy He was a friend of the family and had seen her grow from childhood to be one of the belles in capital society. After her marriage he became a fre quent caller at the Hichborn home and their friendship ripened into afished with Mrs. Hichborn, leaving a note in which he told of their elopewere prostrated and a world-wide search started for the missing pair. They cluded all searchers and reached Paris, continuing to live there until their identity became known. In the summer of 1911 they returned to Washington and it was hinted that a ouble reconciliation would follow.

Then the case took a strange turn. Mrs. Hichborn, not sure that Wylie's ove was entirely her own, proposed that he return to his wife for six months. Should be find at the end of that time that his heart was true to the first woman, they were to remain parted. For the sake of her children Mrs. Wylis accepted, and for six months Mrs. Hichborn did not see the man for whom she had given up all. But promptly on the last day of the trial period Wylie relinquished his home and again fled with Mrs. Hich-

They went abroad and were reportd as living in many cities, loitering n the Riviera, in Italy and Paris. Mr. Highborn started suit for divorce, but ust before it came to trial he shot and killed himself on March 27, 1912. In a tragic note he told how his health had broken under the strain and intimated that he feared his mind as failing.

Mrs. Wylle resolutely refrained from beginning an action, clinging to er husband's name for the sake of their four children, one of whom is now a young man and a Yale graduate. So Wylie and Mrs. Hichborn lived on in their odd relationship, shielding themselves from prying eyes in out of the way places.

But after six years of waiting Mrs. Wylie felt that her vigil was hopeless and began suit. She was granted a divorce two weeks ago in Washington, and the marriage of Wylie and Mrs. Hichborn in Boston on Monday furnishes another chapter in the Mrs. Hichborn and Wylie were married at 4 ole'ock in the afternoon in a private parlor at Hotel Touraine by John H. L. Noyes of the Boston City Registry, a justice of the peace The couple remained in Boston until Tuesday, and then left, saying they were going to New York.
